General Accounting Office, 2000 OCLC Number: ocm45298018 Subject: Parental kidnapping -- Prevention -- International cooperation. Excerpt: . . . B-284189 information about the abducted child might not be entered into the system to alert law enforcement in time to stop an abduction. It also indicated that information on the abducted child might be removed prematurely before 11 the child is returned. Although several agencies may be involved in international parental child The Case-tracking Process abduction cases, the federal government does not have a comprehensive Has Weaknesses information system to track agency activities or ensure that these agencies are taking all appropriate measures. The State Department and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children have separate databases that track international parental abduction cases. A Justice Department database tracks criminal cases brought against child-abducting parents. These databases are not integrated and use different criteria to categorize cases, actions, and results. As a consequence, the incidence of abduction cases, agency actions on those cases, and their results cannot be quickly or easily determined across agencies. The lack of an integrated, comprehensive database has also led to program management problems such as duplication of effort between agencies. For example, a caseworker in the State Departments Office of Childrens Issues made inquiries to a foreign central authority on one case only to find that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had located the child and closed its case a month earlier. This caseworker also told us that his office and the Bureau often make duplicate inquiries to foreign central authorities on the same case. In addition, States case-tracking process cannot provide information on all reasons...
